

Los Alamos Police Department presents:

Street Surveillance Techniques for Plainclothes Officers and Investigators

This 3 day, “hands-on”, exciting and fun training course immerses the attendees into street surveillance scenarios realistically simulating street crime situations such as drug dealing, burglaries, robberies, and other crimes. Attendees will be immersed into realistic street-level situations to gain experience and knowledge by conducting actual physical surveillance on foot, in a vehicle, in stores and elsewhere. Surveillance scenarios range from easy to difficult to intense. Student law enforcement officers must bring a vehicle to use during several intensive surveillance scenarios. Students must be able to perform lengthy foot surveillance, static surveillance and vehicle surveillance. This course provides classroom instruction on the first part of Day One with the rest of the class being conducted in the streets. Radios, surveillance kits, props, binoculars, role-players, and other equipment is supplied by the instructors.
